Occupational Programs

An “occupational program” is one that prepares a student for employment or job advancement. Occupational programs can be of any length, from a 40-hour program to a two-year program. The term “short program” is used to describe a program that is less than two years in length.

Occupational programs are designed to provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary to enter a specific occupation or profession.

These programs are often offered by community colleges and technical schools.

Occupational programs can be a great way for students to gain hands-on experience in their field of interest.

They can also provide students with a clear path to employment after graduation.

Occupational programs are a valuable part of a student's education and can help them prepare for a successful career.

Students interested in occupational programs should contact their school's career center for more information.
