Background on District Budget Review Committee (BRC) Waivers

- Approved in 2018 for 2018-2019 Budget
- Approved in 2019 for 2019-2020 Budget

Questions

Q1: What is the purpose and process of the BRC?

- The BRC is convened in about 10 days following decision to not waive the committee. Purpose and process is to review the District's budget and fiscal policies and transmit by 11/30 either of the following:
 1. The recommendation that the budget be approved or
 2. Report disapproving the budget with recommendations

Questions

Q2: Why continue to recommend to waive a Budget Review Committee (BRC?)

Q3: What factors, beyond the reasons listed in the waiver, are considered in the recommendation to waive?

A budget review committee is usually not that helpful for many reasons:

- The tight timeline of a BRC makes the results rushed and not thorough. The County disapproves the readopted budget by 11/8, a BRC is convened in about 10 days, and by 11/30 the BRC arrives at one of the 2 options listed on the previous slide.
- The short timeline would most likely give the district the same results or lesser quality from the BRC as they have received from FCMAT, the state auditor, SCOE, and rating agencies.

Questions

Q4: Under what circumstances would COE and District staff recommend not to waive a BRC?

- Not many reasons. In recent history, this may have only happened once.
- The language in the law doesn't gear the system for success, mostly due to short time line.
- May be useful for a small district with a singular issue that could accomplish the task in a couple of

Q5: Because this is in addition to a fiscal advisor, what are some additional benefits and disadvantages of a BRC?

- Disadvantages:
 - The FRP draft will be presented to the board on 11/19/2020 while the BRC plan would not come to the board until after 11/30/ 2020
 - A study by a BRC requires an incredible amount of staff work and would redirect limited staff resources from other critical tasks: fiscal recovery plan, 1st interim, and independent auditors.
 - Staff can only work on one or the other – work on the FRP as we have been doing or help three individuals not currently associated with or aware of our local fiscal context redo the whole budget by Nov 30 which is not recommended by staff.
