looks deeply at what the needs are at every school. She likes the different work stations that will be available at the school sites and she appreciates the effort with the schools and the staff.

Vice President Murawski asked about efficiency regarding the second set of projects; she asked if there is a per capita dollar amount. Mr. Sata answered that the equity index identifies the schools, students, and neighborhoods that have historically been marginalized and received the least amount of funding. He said that, in terms of the number of students served, it has been shared that these types of new schools are drivers of economic activity in those neighborhoods. Vice President Murawski said that she understands and agrees, but hopes we have realistic projections about this. She said what she would like to know is, overall, are we thinking if we are spending $10,000 per student versus $5,000 per student are we helping more students with the same amount of money. She would like Member Garcia said she appreciates the very comprehensive profiles of every school site, which she does not believe has been available in the past. She also appreciates that it was said that all schools have needs because of age. She wants to support the equity lense, but said she feels that the analyses are based on what is there and does not factor in how we grow and add capacity. She noted that there is a lot of funding tied to transitional kinder expansion. She also noted expanded learning opportunities that are supposed to happen and a need for before and after school programs and wellness centers as well as community schools. She asked what sites would need a whole new building from scratch. Mr. Sata spoke about a study they are working on about seven school sites that are not currently being used. He also said that there is extra capacity at several existing schools. He reiterated that what was presented is a tool that staff will use and that an actual facilities spending plan will be brought to the Board hopefully within the next several months. Ms. Ramos added that a best use analysis of sites should be available soon as part of phase two. Member Garcia asked if the analysis will factor in athletic fields. Mr. Sata answered that they have data and they have qualitative data which is the human overlay. He said they would be working with the local school sites to actually determine what the specific projects would be that would increase scores once they have identified the schools that are a higher priority. Once a project has been approved there will be a series of workshope with user groups to make detailed decisions. Member Garcia lastly asked Mr. Sata to describe what "additional in-person community forums", as included in the presentation, will look
